

Designed for the Rhythm of Everyday Life

The Lincoln is thoughtfully arranged to support the way life actually unfolds—from unloading groceries to hosting family or enjoying quiet evenings at home. A wide covered front porch leads into a generous entry, where a front study offers flexible space for working from home, managing household tasks, or accommodating overnight guests without disrupting the main living areas.

At the heart of the home, the great room flows seamlessly into the kitchen and dining area, creating one open, connected space for gathering. A central island anchors the kitchen, keeping the cook engaged with conversation and activity in the living area. A walk-in pantry keeps essentials organized and out of sight, while the dining area's access to the covered patio makes indoor-outdoor living simple and natural.

Two secondary bedrooms and a shared bath are thoughtfully grouped together, creating a comfortable zone for guests, hobbies, or visiting family. Their placement maintains connection to the home while offering privacy from the primary suite.

Privately positioned at the rear on the opposite side of the layout, the primary suite provides a relaxing retreat with a dual-sink bath and walk-in closet. Entry from the garage through the laundry near the kitchen streamlines daily routines, helping contain shoes, coats, and packages while keeping the main living spaces tidy and easy to maintain.
